

Art

I painted a picture of a house beside a beach with a picnic on a table.

Something I learned was that when we paint we always have to do stipling so it can stand out.

I decided to use the true colours so that it looks a bit realistic.

Something I think I did well is sketching the picture well and using the right details.

Next time I paint I need to take my time when I do the cardboard edge and to work a bit faster.

By Paige Lagahetau B3
2010

